Connecting to Collections Workshop Series: Storage Solutions for Historic Collections

The Connecticut
League of History
Organizations

This multi-part program provides in-depth training on caring, handling, and storing historic collections focusing on best practices and low-tech solutions. The workshops will include, designing proper storage environments (low-tech solutions), the care and storage various types of museum and library collections (paper, textiles, painting, decorative arts, tools, etc.), managing storage rooms, developing retrieval systems, tagging critical collections in preparation for an emergency or disaster response, plus much more. The faculty for this workshop series are conservators with an expertise in collection care and storage.

What you need to do:

- All participants will be required to attend the first workshop on designing, implementing, and improving collection storage areas (Monday, September 27th).
- Participants may register for as many of the workshops on the care, storage and handling of paintings, furniture, textiles/costumes, paper/books, decorative arts, metals/tools, and photographs as they choose to attend.

What you get:

- Behind-the-scenes tours of the storage areas at the workshop host sites.
- Resource materials, including a CD-Rom with information provided by the workshop faculty on the proper care, handling, and storage of museum and library collections.
- One free "house-call" (per participating institutions) with one of the faculty members to examine the storage concerns at their institution.
